

Abstract of the Invention

Improved performance of counter-rotating turbo machines and compressors. An increase in the thermodynamic efficiency of the compression process is obtained by removing the boundary layer in locations where separation is likely to occur.

450T6280